Council condemns land for Home Depot project

by Lindy Magner

Though aware for months that their property and businesses would be sold and relocated respectively as part of a major redevelopment project, many owners were surprised by the City Council's swift approval of condemnation procedures at Tuesday night's meeting.

Following a public hearing, council voted 4-0 (with one abstention) to begin condemnation procedures under eminent domain law in order to keep to the redevelopment agency's timeline for delivering a total of 10.4 acres to Home Depot on Dec. 28.

Condemnation will allow the seizure of all vacant property on Oct. 15, and all occupied property on Jan. 4, 1993, with court trials to establish property sale prices commencing May 1, 1993.

According to City Manager Jack Shelver, one property owner has reached an agreement with the city and 18 have not. Also, he noted that six businesses which are tenants have yet to be relocated in the city or elsewhere.

Though property owners who have not settled on a price will receive court summons tomorrow, there is still a 30-day period for negotiations.

"We will continue to negotiate until all property is acquired," said City Attorney Don McLean, noting that any property still in possession of the agency after that time would be assigned a value by trial in Superior Court.

"If it doesn't work out negotiating with us, then a judge or jury will decide if we were offering fair market value and set what they think is a fair amount," he explained.

According to Assistant City Manager Doug Yount, the three findings required by state law to take eminent domain action were made by staff:

1.) Whether or not the project is of public necessity.

2.) The proposed project is planned and located in a manner which will be most compatible with the greatest public good and the least private injury.

3.) Whether or not the property sought to be acquired is necessary for the project.

"We found that this site has the fewest number of people and property owners to be displaced and would cost the (redevelopment) agency the least," he said.

During the public hearing which followed Yount's comments, property owners and tenants expressed dissatisfaction over what they consider low offers and inconsistent appraisals as well as with the city's fast-track schedule toward condemnation.

John Niethamer, owner of Honda Kawasaki of Lemon Grove, who leases the property at 7562 Broadway, asked that council postpone the condemnation process and "negotiate in good faith" with the owners.

"You say there's been six weeks of negotiations, but there have been no negotiations. Until a week or two ago, I didn't have a dollar figure," he said, also questioning the need for the Home Depot Project.

"Beyond revenue to the city, its never been expressed what the necessity of this project is. I was told all along that council's position on this was a win-win situation for all concerned and that there would be no injury to businesses - I predict a fair amount of injury."

Mayor Brian Cochran informed Niethamer that council had "never thought that this was going to be a painless situation."

Jerry May, son of property owner Nadine May, told council that the city is getting the advantage of a dismal economy which has made real estate "a buyer's market."

"We're being forced to sell in a low-end economy - we don't want to sell now," he said.

Gloria Gonzalez, a Santee resident who with her husband owns commercial property at 3522 Buena Vista Ave., stated that she was "insulted" by the offer made for that property.

"I had the property appraised several years ago, and it's been devaluated by 20 percent. If we have to go, fine, but don't steal my property," she said.

According to City Attorney McLean, the real estate appraisers, Roberts & Roberts, are basing their property appraisals on recent sale transactions.

"The real estate market is not what it was three years ago," he said.

Robert Holaday of Lemon Grove expressed concern that the offer made to his mother for her property at 7501 North Ave. just came less than a month ago.

"The offer to my mom was dated July 15, a couple of weeks later than you had first indicated - offers would be made. It seems you got behind in your schedule, so you're just shortening the (negotiating) time on owners,

Back to school at Golden Avenue

On Tuesday, the first day of the new school year, a class of kindergartners at Golden Avenue Elementary get their first understanding of the meaning of lining up "single file." With paper nametags hanging around their necks, they made their way back to the classroom after recess.

Local school district candidates profiled

Editor's note: This is part 2 of a two-part article profiling the eight candidates for the Lemon Grove School District. Part 1 ran in the August 20 issue.

Five newcomers will challenge incumbents for the three Lemon Grove School District board seats up for grabs in the November elections.

Though all incumbents filed for re-election, Linda Reynolds and Ilse Hanning traded seats, extending for a week the Aug 5 filing date with the Registrar of Voters.

Running for the short-term seat are: Linda Reynolds, Jaime Green and Janne La Valle. Seeking the long-term seats are Ilse Hanning, Lewis Zollinger (incumbent), Richard Schult, Mark Green and Mark Wasdahl.

• Linda Reynolds (incumbent). A board member for 12 years, she taught in the Bay area before coming to Lemon Grove. She is seeking the short-term seat instead of her four-year seat to allow for a possible future move. Her priority would be to continue district programs begun during the last several years.

"I'd like to get more funding for the development of our technology capabilities, the new home-school program and the language arts program," she stated.

Reynolds stated she has always been in support of the district's federally-funded breakfast and lunch programs. Also, she expressed support for the separation of church and state as put forth by the Supreme Court in the 1960s.

• Ilse Hanning (incumbent). Appointed to the board in March 1991 to complete the term of board member Dave Spisak, Hanning served in the district since 1956 as a teacher, principal and assistant superintendent.

She feels that her many years as an educator have given her an edge in knowing "what parents want and what students need in Lemon Grove."

"My approach to education has always been quality and not quantity in the classroom," she stated. "We should make sure teachers we hire are the best we can find."

She added that students should be taught self-discipline and "high standards of integrity." She believes strongly in teaching students morals, but "respects the Supreme Court decision outlawing prayer in schools."

• Mark Green - An electronics technician, he is the wife of candidate Jaime Green, and has two preschoolers. He is running because he thinks the school district could benefit from his ideas. "Our education system is in trouble," he said, stressing the need for businesses to become involved in the education process.

"Maybe we can involve businesses in the education of our children by donating equipment and time. Education is in a pinch and we have to ask how are we going to provide the same level or better level of services with less money - business could help."

When asked if he supported school breakfast programs, he replied that he wasn't very familiar with such programs but would favor such a program "if the lack of meals is an impairment to education."

As to the question of prayer in the schools, he stated: "I wouldn't like to bar any child from practicing freedom of religion."

• Mark Wasdahl - A transportation planner, he and his wife teach their children at home. He favors education reform first begun by former Secretary of but you're keeping right on your schedule when it comes to condemnation, even if you're hurting the people you serve," he said.

When asked following the meeting if the city did indeed fall behind on its schedule to begin making offers, Shelver responded that he didn't think there ever was such a schedule. "We didn't have a date by which we were going to make offers, so I don't know that we were behind in doing so," he said.

Also following the meeting, comments were made by other property owners and business as to their trials and tribulations in negotiating prices and finding new locations.

The city has hired John Yonai of Rosenow Spevacek Group, Inc., as its acquisition agent. Pacific Relocation Consultants (PRC) of Long Beach are relocating business tenants and residents of rental properties and the 36-unit Elmwood Trailer Park.

Carl McWilliams, the owner of three lots on the corner of Buena Vista and North avenues, stated that he was first offered an amount which fell quite short of what neighboring property owners with comparable lots were getting.

"I wasn't getting near as much as the fellow next door. I was told (by the acquisition agent) that because I had more land, it was cheaper (by the square-foot). That might work with a sack of potatoes, but land isn't sold that way," he said, adding that the property is now being reappraised.

Mary Shelley, co-owner of D & M Welding which leases its building from McWilliams, said that she and her husband are saddled with the burden of finding a new location.

"This has been handled very poorly. They (the relocation consultants) are telling us to go out and find a building and to put a package together on the costs and present it to them. I always thought they would be presenting us with a list of available places we'd then chose from," said Shelley noting that this procedure is costing her valuable time. Her searches have come up empty for a suitable location in Lemon Grove, and the top contender for a new building is in El Cajon.

"I don't think we'll be able to relocated here - after 21 years in Lemon Grove, that really upsets me," she said.

According to Steve Oliver, one of the two PRC field representatives working to relocate tenants, he has relied on real estate brokers to provide lists of available properties.

"I've introduced several of the business people to one broker who I know has provided lists. I'm monitoring what the broker is doing," he said. Oliver stated that he has come to "understandings" for relocation with two of the businesses.

Education William Bennett to "bring schools up to their potential."

"Schools have had other interests such as health matters - I'd like to see an intense focus on education itself and basic literacy," he said. Wasdahl supports schools offering lunch to students but is against school-supplied breakfasts. "It's setting a bad precedent to take away from parents the duty of providing breakfast for their children."

Though he stops short of advocating prayer in the schools, he would support a 30-second time of silence before classes begin to allow children to pray - unled by a teacher - if they so desire.

No candidate profiled this week claimed affiliation with the Christian Coalition, a fundamentalist group which trains candidates for school boards. Candidate Richard Shult, profiled in the first article, is the South Bay chairman of the coalition.

B-Words Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

On Serving

One of the lesser of the issues that are being addressed in the present political conflict is service in the Armed Forces of the United States.

The Democratic candidate is said to have avoided service to his country by wangling a deferment through an R.O.T.C. enlistment which he did not complete. He says that this, among other things, qualifies him to be the Commander in Chief of America's military establishment. The Republican candidate did serve as a Navy pilot and flew combat missions during WW II and was even shot down at sea, being rescued by a submarine crew. Only history will tell us which did assume the highest military rank in our country, and how he performed in that capacity.

The present subjection, or disparaging, or unappreciation for those who have served in the Armed Forces, and those presently in uniform, bothers me greatly. The downplaying of the significance of our military veterans appears to me to be a specious excusing of those who shirked what I consider to be an honor and a duty.

For whatever reasons, the importance of this service, especially during wartime, is dismissed out of hand when it embarrasses or suggests a flaw in the character of anyone seeking political office. Especially if an opponent has a military record that is a source of pride in doing one's part, or even one that connotes any degree of heroism.

There has always been those who serve and those who do not for various reasons. Medical disability, the 4-Fs in the old days, is a fact of life and usually no one's fault. Very often it has been a sincere pain to be told that one could not serve in the military for such reasons.

Very long ago, it was possible to "buy" an immunity to military service, or to pay a surrogate to fulfill that duty. In recent years, this blatant practice has been replaced with "political string pulling," or leaving the country, or legal machinations too involved for most of us to comprehend.

My personal view is that all American males should be required to serve two years in one of the branches of our military. When they register at the age of 18, it should be mandatory that the two years following be in one of our uniforms. I would even extend that to our female population only on a voluntary basis. The benefits of such a program would be many.

The physical fitness aspects of a boot camp would be an ideal beginning for our youth in exercise habits, wholesome food, and the regimentation that would instill the sense of responsibility and work ethic. Two years, at this time, is ideal in maturing the body and especially the mind. Learning discipline and respect for authority is something that many of our youth are never exposed to nowadays, and I believe to their detriment.

I recall my boot camp where I met and lived closely with a complete cross section of society. We had guys from all parts of the country and all levels of society. I found role models, that I was driven to emulate, and more importantly I saw those that I certainly did not want to be like. I also "discovered" San Diego, and have been forever grateful.

According to some statisticians, only one third of the military ever was involved in combat or fired a shot in anger. As one of the other two thirds, I am still immensely proud of my three years, when Uncle Sam had me firmly by the posterior from 1943 to 1946.

The many of our compatriots that never returned, notwithstanding, I believe that everyone who served, in whatever capacity, is the better American because of that experience. Some fared badly subsequently in life, but in our present day situation, I can only surmise that many of our youth are the same for the lack of it.

Every person who has served in a green, blue or olive drab, has something to be proud of, and it should not be disparaged. Having "done one's duty" should not be discredited or maligned for political purpose.

I will always consider very heavily the candidate for any office, who has worn a set of fatigues, over one who has not.

City Appreciation Sundowner Draws Crowd

The Chamber's second annual City Appreciation Sundowner was what a Sundowner is all about. Lots of people, good food, fun and conversation. Since it was an occasion for the Chamber to acknowledge the contribution and support of the City of Lemon Grove, the Fire Department, and the Sheriff's department, it was nice to have such a good turn-out. Mayor Pro-Tem Lois Heiserman, Captain William Flores of the Sheriff's Department, and Assistant Fire Chief Dale Chamberlain accepted the Certificates of Recognition from President Ernie Pero.

This year, thanks to the generosity of our members, we were able to have a drawing. The prizes we awarded were donated by Ted Uhler of Cox Cable, Cookie Ringhand, Pete Celestino and Jim Butcher of AAA Copy, Colleen Ruis of Letter-Kraft Printing, and Betty Randazzo of Secure Horizons.

Several of our members donated beer, wine, ice, and food. Thank you, Horseshoe Lounge, El Pollo Loco, Subway Sandwiches and C & M Wire.

As for the winners of the drawings, Patricia Baldwin is going on a cruise, Robin Danley will enjoy a dinner for two at El Torito's, Desi Radney received a gift certificate, Laraine Mundt was the recipient of 1,000 business cards and Patricia Wolfe won the gift basket full of food and other goodies.

D & M Welding's card was drawn for the fishbowl. Mary and Dwight always come through for so many things at the Chamber that it was nice to see them win.

Special thanks to Desi Radney from Country Comfort Catering. She is responsible for the beautiful fountain and artful set-up of the food tables. Nicholas from Top Hat Catering helped with setting up the room and provided linens and coffee.

The hospitality of the Community Center is not to be matched. Thank you Mike and Nancy for all you did for us.

The die-hard clean-up helpers were too many to mention but chief among them were Karen and Don Warrant, Steve and Erica Aldrich, Mary Shelley and her two girls, Susan and Anna, Colleen Ruis and her son, Warren, and Ernie Pero.

So many people asked about the cabbage and noodle salad that it seems necessary to mention that Colleen Ruis brought it. Don't know if her recipe is a secret or not, so you'll have to check with her. Michele is inclined to beg Pete Smith for his chili recipe and Lois Heiserman for her delicious corn pudding.

Our Watchdogs are Busy No on 167 urged

The Government & Legislation Committee has been regularly active monitoring local and state activities this election year. The twice-monthly City Council Brown Bag meetings are being attended by committee members.

Thirteen State Propositions are on the November ballot and our committee keeps the Chamber board current on what the California Chamber of Commerce thinks about these measures. Most onerous and objectionable is Proposition 167, and I'm pleased to report that our Chamber has joined with others statewide to officially oppose this measure that includes more than a dozen new taxes and tax increases, being particularly injurious to small businesses. The League of California Cities by opposing it also recognizes the short-sightedness of Prop. 167.

The East County Chambers with others have been meeting in committee and have scheduled a general meeting at the La Mesa Community Center, 4975 Memorial Dr., La Mesa, on Sept. 22, from 7:15 to 8:30 a.m. Sponsored by the ECEDC, the various chambers, and others, the aim is to defeat Props 166 and 167. You, and particularly your employees, are urged to attend.

California Workers' Compensation is a national embarrassment. The California Chamber of Commerce fought long and hard for reform by supporting AB 3167 which failed in committee on May 5. On August 12th a two-house conference committee convened to begin deliberations on Workers' Compensation reform. Meanwhile, California continues to have the highest cost program in the country, and among the lowest benefits. Senate Bill 1624 is the new vehicle supported by the California Chamber of Commerce. Assemblyman Steve Peace, a member of the conference committee, should be contacted locally at 426-1617 to support SB 1624.

Our committee meets at 9 a.m., first Tuesday of each month at the Chamber office (trolley station). Our newest committee member is Marlee MacGraw, who replaced Jack Miller as Lemon Grove's Crime Prevention specialist at the Sheriff's Department. Jack Miller recently retired.

For further information regarding government or legislative matters, you may contact Michele at the Chamber office or myself at 464-1023.

Thanks to D & M Welding

The new window is in at the Chamber office, thanks to Mary and Dwight Shelly of D & M Welding. They designed it, built it, and then installed it August 19, the day before Dwight had his throat surgery.

It really looks great, but more important is that this is the solution to our security and safety problems. Trolley passes and information are handled through the window, and Chamber members and citizens interested in knowing more about Lemon Grove or wanting to buy post cards and such can simply come to the window to let Michele know they want in.

Dwight's surgery went well, and the prognosis is excellent. Dwight had to keep from talking for a week after the surgery, and there are not a few of us for whom that would be a real challenge. As for Dwight, I guess it hurt so much for him to talk that he didn't need much incentive to keep mum. Now we know the real reason he was speechless when he and Mary won the fishbowl!

August Luncheon

The Chamber luncheon was again very well attended. This time we were at Heidi's where Arian and Camille took wonderful care of us. Our guest speakers, Mayor Brian Cochran and City Manager Jack Shelper, were very generous with their time and answered many questions posed by our members about various aspects of the city.

Ted Uhler brought Padre tickets and pre-season Charger tickets so that we could offer them to members at the luncheon. We auctioned off the Charger tickets (hope you had a good time, Brian), and discreetly accepted modest donations for the Padre tickets. Thank you, Ted, for this great addition to our luncheon.

September Luncheon

Our next Chamber luncheon is September 17 at the Community Center. Our guest speaker is from the Olympic Training Committee who will provide us with an update. We will have a video presentation and our lunch will be catered by Top Hat Catering.

RSVP, Please

Ron Skillman of Union Bank is hosting this month's Sundowner on September 23rd. He plans a baseball theme. Should be fun. Give him a hand with his planning and RSVP as soon as you receive his invitation and know your schedule. Michele at the Chamber office can tell you from recent experience what a big help that is!

If You Have a Complaint ...

Brian Cochran has moved his office to 7850 Golden Ave., in Lemon Grove. His new telephone number is 461-5000 and you will find his new secretary, Theresa, to be very pleasant and helpful.

Brian's change of address brings to mind that any of our members whose addresses and/or phone numbers have changed should call Michele at the Chamber office so that she can keep her records and the Directory up to date.

Junk Mail Library

The Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce is on the mailing list of a jillion organizations. Rather than trash most of it, we are keeping many mailings on hold for thirty days in a basket at the Chamber office. It will be a temporary library for current information which may be of little interest to most members but could be important to you. Each item will be dated and trashed after thirty days. Of course, such things as correspondence, council minutes, ALERT, etc., will be retained on a more permanent basis.

Smith Bros. at Sundowner

Miscellaneous

Two of our Chamber members are running for the School Board this fall. They are Jan LaValle and Linda Reynolds. Already on the board are two more of our members - Lou Ann Holaday and Carol Chubb.

Volunteers are needed at the Chamber office. We need people to help with telephones and routine paperwork to free Michele up for more public relations work. Call Michele if you would like to help.

Bob Guest's mother, Mrs. Florence Guest, has been in Alvarado Convalescent Hospital for the last couple of weeks with a compression fracture to her back caused by osteoporosis. She is more comfortable now and the Guests hope to bring her home in the next week or so.

The Board of Directors has a vacancy due to Hal Jahries' retirement. Any members interested in filling this spot should call Michele at the Chamber office.

The Chamber celebrated Boll Weevil's Grand Opening with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on Friday, September 4. Mayor Brian Cochran, Councilman Bob Burns, Miss Lemon Grove, Sarilee Spangler, and our Chamber President, Ernie Pero were among those who helped Tom Wheeler cut the ribbon.

We have Bob Steiger of Steiger's Florist to thank for the yellow bow and ribbon and Al Lazok, as some of you may know, is the creator of our beautiful ceremonial scissors.

A Workers Comp nightmare

This case history was provided by Kemper National Insurance Company to highlight the abuses of the present workers compensation law.

Seven employees of a Southern California company were terminated last year because they lacked proper documentation to be employed in the United States. That should have been the end of the story.

However, soon after the employees were discharged they were contacted by a "legal referral service" and referred to an attorney. Suddenly, they were in need of wide-ranging medical attention. The workers were each sent to five different health care clinics - coincidentally all owned by the same doctor - and received initial exams in nine different medical specialties, including dentistry, neurology, pathology, radiology, psychology, chiropractic and orthopedic.

The attorney filed workers compensation claims with Kemper National for the workers. Billings from the doctors for just the initial exams totaled more than $100,000, or $14,285 per "injured" worker. Kemper National is contesting the claims.

Unfortunately, this story is only one of thousands coming out of the Golden State. California accounted for about 31 percent of the total amount Kemper National spent on workers compensation legal expenses in 1991, even though less than 20 percent of the company's workers comp business comes from California. And the percentage of settled claims that included legal expenses where a California worker lost time on the job because of an injury increased 162 percent between 1989 and 1991.

Industry-wide, the California workers compensation system spends as much money for direct litigation expenses, about $1.5 billion, as insurers pay doctors to treat injured workers or pay workers for permanent partial disability benefits, reports the California Workers Compensation Institute. And the annual litigation bill increased more than 500 percent in the 1980s.

Workers compensation was designed to be a "no-fault" insurance system. If workers were injured on the job, all medical and rehabilitation bills would be taken care of, and most of their lost wages would be covered, no matter who was at fault. But thanks to a plethora of overzealous attorneys and health care providers, an ongoing liberal interpretation of what workplace injuries are compensable, inequitable state laws that give workers the freedom to abuse the court system and in many cases outright fraud, this no-fault system is breaking down.

"It's now to the point where, in many cases, workers compensation insurance benefits lawyers, physicians, chiropractors and physical therapists far more than injured workers or employers. And that's just not right," said Gene Adams, division claim officer in Kemper National's Folsom, Calif., office. "Appropriate legal representation where a real difference of opinion exists is one thing. But excessive attorney involvement, and the rising workers compensation costs that go with it, have become a common part of the workers compensation system in California."

Newspapers throughout California are loaded with ads seeking already employed workers suffering from job stress or "pressure at work." One ad says: "Just call. We will take care of the rest." A law office in Long Beach offers free transportation to and from its office.

"In California and elsewhere, employers and insurers need to communicate better with injured workers, to allay their fears and concerns and let them know they'll be taken care of, and that lawyers aren't needed in the claim settlement process," Adams said. The system needs reforms that will return it to that basis of operation."

PARCEL NUMBERING SYSTEM EXPLANATION

The Assessor's parcel number when used to describe property in this list, refers to the Assessor's map book, the map page or block number in the book and the individual parcel number on the map page or within the block. A parcel number as for example, '448-692-12' would mean Book 448 of the Assessor's Maps, Block 692 (Page 69, Block 2) and Parcel 12 within that block. A sub-identification number of 01 or 02, etc., to a parcel, as for example, '448-692-12-01' would indicate multiple ownership or condominium. The maps referred to are available for inspection in the office of the Assessor.

All property hereinafter described is in the County of San Diego, State of California, all townships being south of the San Bernardino Base, and all ranges being either east or west of the San Bernardino meridian.

SITUS ADDRESS EXPLANATION

The street address of the property, if any is included as shown on the County Assessment Roll for each parcel declared to be in default. Parcels without an assigned street number are shown as street number 00000.

New restaurants coming to Gateway Plaza to be a prototype for the future

In mid-October, when the Po'Folks and Papachinos restaurants open in the Gateway Shopping Center on Federal Blvd. at College, they will be part of an exciting new concept which owner Larry Greenberg hopes to copy across the nation.

"This is a new concept for us and will serve as a prototype - if successful, we'll be doing more such multiplexes," said Greenberg, president of Popular Restaurants, Inc., the parent corporation.

According to Greenberg, Lemon Grove was not randomly picked but carefully studied for the location of the multiplex concept.

"We spent almost three years on this project; the demographics showed that within a five-mile radius of Lemon Grove, there was a population of 400,000 - we'd have to go to Orange County to do better than that," he said.

Also, Greenberg was looking for a location with freeway access and where the type of signage he desired was allowed.

"The city has been very cooperative, he said," adding that one of the features will be Tivoli strip lighting which will outline the entire building.

He explained that the restaurants will share a common kitchen as well as a central upstairs area dubbed the Hunting Bear Sportsman's Lodge where cocktails, Monday night football and barbecue menus will be served up.

This will be the fourth San Diego location (there are 135 nationwide) for Po'Folks, a restaurant which Greenberg compares to a turn-of-the-century country home furnished with antiques, with model trains chugging on tracks laid around the dining area. Po'Folks will have about two-thirds of the total space and an upstairs in which to serve its "down-home" chicken, cornbread and biscuits.

This will also be the fourth San Diego county location for Papachinos, a pizza, pasta, salad restaurant which has not yet boasted an out of county location, though Greenberg stated that will happen in the near future. "We're currently negotiating with people in several areas to become franchisees," he said.

VALLEY TWIRLERS Square Dance Club

Our beginners' square dancing class will start on September 17 at the Renette Recreation Center, 935 Emerald Ave., El Cajon. Class will be held every Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. For more information, call 562-4250 or 464-2610

Valley Twirlers

Valley Twirlers caller Jess Lunsford and his wife, Pat.

Now that summer is over, why not learn to square dance? People of all ages, all over the world enjoy this activity. It's good exercise, great fun, and inexpensive.

Valley Twirlers Square Dance Club is offering a square dance class for adults starting Thursday, September 17, from 7:30-9:30 at Renette Center, 935 Emerald Ave., El Cajon. A donation of $2.50 per person helps pay the caller/teacher's fee. For more information call 562-4250, 464-2610, 469-1470.

Jess Lunsford, caller/teacher, with many years experience in square dancing, patiently and thoroughly teaches new dancers while still keeping the dancing fun.

Husbands dragged to classes soon become converts. Anyone who can move to music (read that "pick up your feet somewhat in time to the music") and knows the right hand from the left (most of the time) can square dance. At the beginning, regular street clothes are fine. Later, class members are encouraged to wear the traditional square dance clothing.

San Diego County has many square dance clubs. Every night of the week, somewhere close, some club dances. Friendly and enthusiastic people are the norm. Square dancing has evolved in the past thirty years to a uniform set of calls recognized anywhere square dancing is done. The caller puts the calls together in many different ways for variety.

The Thursday classes will be open for new enrollments the first three class sessions. So mark September 17th on your calendar and come to Renette Center at 7:30 to find out what fun square dancing can be.
